BILBO FUSS SNARLS SENATE

City Begins Year With $1,264,551 Operating Balance

COUNTY FUNDS AT $160,000, AUDITOR SAYS

Both Governments Start 1947 With Sufficient Money to Meet Expenses.

Mansfield began 1947 with a balance of $1,264,551 in cash and securities while Richland county had a two-fund balance of some $160,000, city and county auditors reported today.

The city's balance marked a $215,000 drop as compared with the total at the beginning of 1946 while the county's balance represented about a $27,000 increase.

City Auditor Paul L. Kelley said work on Mansfield's Clear Fork reservoir last year is primarily responsible for the drop in the city's balance.

Couldn't Spend Funds.

County Auditor Norman L. Wolfe said county funds showed an increase because shortages stymied planned construction and purchases last year.

Kelley said the city's new year cash balance totaled $734,326 compared with the 1945 balance of $848,696. An investment of $530,000 in government securities is included in the balance, he said.

He added that about $250,000 was spent on the Clear Fork project last year, while $45,000 was accounted for in wage increases for city employes.

Wolfe reported a balance of $100,000 in the county's general fund and a $60,000 balance in the road and bridge fund. These compare with 1945 balances of $80,000 and $53,000, respectively.

He said the county's general fund would have shown a lower balance had the county been able to launch proposed construction projects last year.

The road and bridge fund would have less money in it, too, Wolfe added, if scheduled purchases of new equipment could have been made and if a heavy snowstorm had required much highway clearing labor.

10-FOOT WAVES BATTER HAWAII

HONOLULU—(INS)—Waves reported to have reached the tidal proportions of ten feet—battered the Hawaiian islands early today.

The U. S. Coast Guard said the waves were of "dangerous proportions" but announced a survey indicated there was no danger of another tidal disaster such as swept the islands last April.

Homes in some coastal areas were evacuated when the waves threatened, but little damage was reported.

In a report on the sea disturbance, Capt. J. W. Ryssy, Coast Guard duty officer, said:

"Water at Lanikai reached the floors of houses and people were evacuating to higher ground. We do not think this is a tidal wave but believe it's due to bad weather conditions."

DENTIST LEARNS HE MAKES SHARP TEETH

CHICAGO—(INS)—A Chicago dentist knew painfully well today that the false teeth he makes can do their biting job.

Dr. Barrett Mindlin showed central police a tooth-marked finger as evidence.

He told them that he and a patient, John M. Langhout, 53, couldn't agree on the price of repairs to the plates. Mindlin reached in his patient's mouth to remove the teeth. Langhout bit him.

Polite Guy Hits, Speaks and Runs

FALL RIVER, Mass.—(AP)—Frank Schiere's New Year greeting came belatedly and violently. An automobile knocked him down as he crossed a street. The unidentified driver shouted:

"Happy New Year, kid," and sped away.

Schiere suffered a slight leg injury.

Ice Coats Streets In City Again

Slippery streets and roads which slowed traffic again last night in the Mansfield area were blamed for an accident in which two persons were injured.

The ice formed after a light freezing rain and heralded the approach of another cold wave which is expected to drop the mercury to eight or 10 above zero by tomorrow in the Mansfield area.

Injured in a two-car head-on crash at the junction of South Main street road and Cook road were Mrs. Ida Burghard and 20-month-old daughter, Sharon, of Mansfield, R. D. 5.

* * *

MRS. BURGHARD'S CAR skidded into the path of a southbound car driven by Richard M. Shrack, Lexington, when she applied her brakes to avoid hitting another car, officers said.

Bath cars were damaged, deputy sheriffs said.

Three other passengers in the Burghard car escaped injury. The injured were treated by a physician.

While other sections of the state received up to two inches of snow and ice last night and early today, Mansfield's ice and snow had melted by noon as the sun appeared for the first time in several days.

The weatherman said skies will remain clear over Sunday as the cold tightens its grip on the state. The Hayesville weather station reported a low reading of 17 degrees this morning. The mercury stood at 22 at noon.

* * *

TOLEDO REPORTED A LOW of five above this morning, one of the lowest in the middle west. Kansas City reported 10 below and Oklahoma City, eight below as the cold slid southward from the northern Rocky mountains.

The Toledo area was hardest hit by the ice storm and in response to a frantic appeal from City Manager George Schoonmaker, special crews of workmen were en route from Findlay and Dayton to assist in removing traffic hazards caused by fallen trees and utility wires.

Thousands of Toledo homes remained blacked out due to the damage to power lines, with Toledo Edison reporting a backlog of 3,000 trouble calls.

The state department of highways reported roads slippery in spots north of Greenville, Springfield, Upper Sandusky, Wooster and Youngstown.

Himming Put On Pan After Girl Returns

COLUMBUS—(INS)—Robert Haine Hemming, 42-year-old ex-convict, was returned to Columbus from Cleveland today for questioning in the two-day disappearance of a pretty 20-year-old Ohio State university co-ed.

The auburn-haired co-ed, Mary Virginia Kimberly, returned to her suburban Upper Arlington home late yesterday, ending a widespread search. She had disappeared in the company of Hemming on New Year's day, and upon returning exclaimed to her father, "Oh, dad, it was awful."

The girl's parents told newsmen that Mary Virginia reported she could not remember all that had happened but that she had learned from Hemming that she had been drugged with sodium barbital.

Hemming was arrested a few hours later in Cleveland on a "suspicious person" warrant filed by Ohio State university Prof. Emerson E. Kimberly, the girl's father.

The former convict was returned to Columbus from Cleveland early today and was undergoing questioning. Upper Arlington Police Chief Frank Carey said Hemming would be questioned thoroughly next Monday and meanwhile would be held on the suspicion charge.

GAS STRIKE ENDS

NEWARK, N. J.—(AP)—Gas workers at the Harrison and Newark plants of the Public Service Electric and Gas company were back on the job today as their representatives and company officials called another negotiation session.

BLAST VICTIMS' CONDITION FAIR

Mrs. Robert Castor, 586 Acker drive, and Miss Louise Mitchell, 611 Cook road, who were injured in an explosion at the Castor home yesterday noon, were reported today to have suffered second degree burns. Miss Mitchell was burned severely on both arms, it was reported. Both are in fair condition at the Mansfield General hospital according to hospital officials.

The two were burned when a can of gasoline, being used to clean clothing, exploded in the kitchen of the Castor home. They were rushed to Geenral hospital in Wappner's ambulance.

Fire Chief L. J. Steele said today that the gasoline fumes probably were ignited by a stove in the kitchen. He said, however, that he has not determined the exact cause for the explosion.

WORKERS APOLOGIZE FOR FILING CLAIM

PHILADELPHIA—(UP)—Four duty-bound, but apparently conscience-stricken employes of the Doehler-Jarvis corporation, Pottstown, Pa., have filed a portal-to-portal pay suit against the company. But they actually apologize for the action.

Employe-management relations, they explained in a petition submitted to U. S. district court yesterday, were "as pleasant and honorable as the conditions of labor relations in a factory permit."

Their petition said the suit was filed "without malice" when negotiations for a friendly settlement broke down "because of circumstances beyond the control of both parties."

Senate Has Busy Time Shattering Precedents

WASHINGTON—(UP)—The senate in one day broke so many precedents that old-timers found it hard to count them.

Here are some of the customs, rules, precedents and habits that were smashed as a result of the Republican attempt to bar Sen. Theodore G. Bilbo (D., Miss.) from his seat.

Never before—at least in the past 110 years—has the senate lacked a president or a president pro tempore for more than an hour or two. But Senate Secretary Leslie L. Biffle, who supposedly took the chair only to swear in the new senators-elect, occupied it all day yesterday and was still the presiding officer today.

The reasons are that there now is no vice-president of the United States, who customarily is president of the senate, nor, for the time being, is there a senate president pro tem.

The rule of President Pro Tem Sen. Kenneth McKellar (D., Tenn.) expired at noon yesterday and the Republicans have been unable to install their choice as his successor, Sen. Arthur H. Vandenberg (R., Mich.)

Visitors Cause Protest.

Sen. William Langer (R., N. D.) broke another long-established rule by speaking on the floor before he had taken his oath of office. Reelected last November, Langer rose to protest a move by Sen. Wayne R. Morse (R., Ore.) that wives and relatives of senators be chased off the senate floor.

Their being on the floor also was unprecedented. It was only during the last session that women clerks were given the right to enter the senate chamber under any circumstances. That occurred when Sen. Owen Brewster (R., Me.) got permission to let his secretary into the chamber briefly.

Jack Snip Hacks Hair Of 3 More

WASHINGTON—(INS)—The number of victims claimed by Jack-the-Snipper rose to 11 today after Washington's amateur barber snipped the locks of three more women.

In the space of five hours, the haircut bandit clipped the tresses of a 12-year-old schoolgirl, a 37-year-old mother and a 17-year-old former navy department worker.

Latest to sit in Jack's "chair" were Mrs. Betty Mae Southward, mother of a 15-year-old girl, who reported feeling a tug at her dark hair as she was riding aboard a streetcar last evening. Arriving home, Mrs. Southward discovered four inches hacked from her pageboy bob.

Black Marketeers Hike Their Prices

ROME—(INS)—Rome's black marketeers observed the suspension of a special police drive aimed at curbing their activities by raising prices of most commodities today.

PLANNING NEW WESTINGHOUSE PAY DEMAND

UE Expected to Seek 29-Cent Hourly Boost From Four Big Companies.

The CIO United Electrical workers union got ready today to press demands for wage increases expected to reach more than 29 cents at Westinghouse and plants of three other major electrical manufacturing concerns.

Associated Press dispatches from New York said CIO-UE's views were advanced preparatory to meetings today and tomorrow of the union's wage scale committee of 300 at which the demands will be formulated.

Firms with whom the new contract will be negotiated are General Electric, Westinghouse, General Motors and Sylvania Electric, employing approximately 225,000 men. The union won pay increases of 18½ cents an hour for most of its members last year following a long strike against General Electric, Westinghouse and General Motors.

Negotiations are expected to open next month.

James J. Matles, UE director of organization, who outlined the union position with other officials yesterday, declined to say at a news conference the exact wage increase that would be demanded.

* * *

Cites Living Cost.

He said, however, that the union estimated its members had sustained a weekly loss of $11.72 since January because of cost of living increases. This amount divided by a 40-hour week gave a figure of 27 cents an hour, Matles said, adding that the union expected to recover this.

However, other demands to inaugurate or extend benefits for vacations, severance pay, welfare funds and pensions would increase the total "economic" gains sought to over the 29-cent mark.

Matles emphasized that the union had taken no strike vote.

Termination date of the General Electric and Westinghouse contracts is April 1, that of Sylvania Electric April 30, while the reopening date of the two-year contract with General Motors is April 28.

GOP ENDORSES FOUR FOR JOBS

Republican executive and central committee chairmen from eight Mansfield area counties, meeting last night in Mansfield, endorsed Harry E. Hawley, Shelby, for the state liquor director's post and approved the recent appointment of C. Homer Bricker, Medina, as Division 3 state highway engineer at Ahland.

Hawley resigned last month as clerk of the Richland county election board.

The chairman also endorsed two assistant engineers, James Atkinson, Galion, and A. Mittendorf, Ashland, for reappointment. Both men were Republican carry-overs in the Lausche administration.

Howard Hulse, Elyria, was endorsed for a position as a traveling auditor under the registrar of motor vehicles. He had previously served as a traveling auditor under a former Republican administration.

Other endorsements will be discussed at a meeting scheduled for Jan. 24 at the Southern hotel, J. V. Will, Richland county central committee chairman, said.

Cops 'N' Robbers Game Kills Youth

VANDALIA—(INS)—A boys' game of "cops 'n' robbers" ended in tragedy late yesterday when Arthur Lawrence Dunn, 16, was shot in a woods near his home by a companion.

Herman Miller, jr., 16, was marching Larry and his brother, John, 15, along the road ahead of him as captured "robbers" when the shooting occurred. Herman pulled a clip of cartridges from his rifle, but forgot about a shell already in the magazine. Larry, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Mack Dunn of Vandalia, died en route to a Dayton hospital.

Truce Lacking As Fight Goes Into 2nd Day

Republicans Vote to Hold Senators In Continuous Session In Strong Effort to Crush 'Filibuster'.

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The senate floor battle over the seating of Theodore G. Bilbo of Mississippi went into a second day today with no sign of a truce between the groups wrangling over his admission.

Republican leaders met during the morning to discuss ways of breaking the deadlock which is holding up swearing in other senators-elect.

Afterward, Senator Wherry (R., Neb.), the Republican senate whip, told reporters:

"There is no change. We're going to keep on fighting."

Wherry spoke for the group opposing the seating of the Mississippian.

Senator Taft (R., Ohio) told Democratic Leader Barkley of Kentucky that the Republican conference had voted to hold the senate in session all night tonight, all day tomorrow and continuously next week if necessary to dispose of the Bilbo matter.

Taft told Barkley on the senate floor three minutes before the session opened that the Republicans would not agree to any break even to hear President Truman deliver his state-of-the-union message at the scheduled 1 p. m. (EST) Monday.

Describing as a filibuster the actions of Bilbo's friends on the floor in insisting on his being sworn before others awaiting the oath, Taft said the attack on the filibuster would be carried on as long as the senate can muster the necessary quorum to remain in session.

Under the rules the senate may vote to instruct the sergeant at arms to bring in members who are not present when it is meeting.

* * *

Dems Hold Firm.

Senator Maybank (D., S. C.), one of those who has been advocating that Bilbo be seated immediately, told a reporter that if the Republicans persist in their plan for continuous session "we will stay here with them."

Bilbo conferred with other southern Democrats before the session started and told reporters: "It's still status quo."

Fifty-one Republican senators held the lengthy morning conference to discuss strategy.

Senator Tobey (R., N. H.) left the conference with this comment:

"We're going to fight like hell. We're going right through the night."

The senate was called to meet at noon, and Senator Taft (Ohio) declared it "will probably be necessary to hold the senate in continuous session" unless Bilbo's backers quit talking.

Senators Brewster (Me.) and Ferguson (Mich.), predicted an attempt to impose cloture—curtailment of debate—would be the final decision by the Republican strategists.

If the GOP could count on 11 Democrats who voted with them on one point yesterday they would have exactly the two-thirds majority to invoke this seldom used device.

The GOP had 29 members seated against 31 Democrats. The 11 Democratic votes would give them a 40 to 20 majority for debate limitation.

But the 80th congress went into its second day with Democrats still in the senate saddle despite the 51-45 majority the GOP will hold when all are sworn in. Republicans had already organized

SOHNGEN PUT IN COURT JOB

Lausche Names State Liquor Director to Serve in Ohio Supreme Court.

COLUMBUS—(INS)—Robert M. Sohngen, of Hamilton, today was appointed by Governor Lausche to the state supreme court.

Sohngen will succeed, effective next Monday, the late Roy M. Williams, of Sandusky.

Serves In Cabinet.

The Hamilton attorney has served as state liquor director in Lausche's cabinet and at one time was reported in line for appointment to the U. S. senate when a vacancy occurred there.

Governor Lausche issued a brief two-paragraph statement in announcing the appointment:

"I have this day appointed Mr. Robert M. Sohngen as judge of the supreme court of Ohio to fill the vacancy caused by the untimely death of Judge Roy Williams, the appointment to become effective Monday, Jan. 6, 1947.

"He is a lawyer of ability, integrity and courage. His experience has been broad. I feel that he will make a good judge. For the last two years he has served as director of liquor control in my administration."

Appointment of Sohngen to fill the term of the late Judge Williams came as no surprise. Sohngen has been the favorite cabinet member of Lausche in his two years at head of the state department.

The new supreme court judge is a member of the Hamilton law firm of Sohngen, Parrish and Beeler.

Fifty-nine years old, he is a graduate of Cornell university. He practiced law in Butler county for more than 30 years.

CAMERA TRICKSTER REMAINS AT LARGE

NEW YORK—(INS)—Mrs. Olga Trapani Rocco, 28, continued to improve in Roosevelt hospital today as police pressed their hunt for her husband, Alphonse, 36, who rigged the camera-gun that shot her.

Mrs. Rocco's left leg was amputated as a desperate measure to save her life.

Detectives continued to grill Pearl Lusk, 19-year-old salesgirl who was the dupe in the plot. She is held in $10,000 bail as a material witness.

Bill Proposes to Pay GI's In Cash

WASHINGTON—(AP)—A bill proposing cash payment to GI's of their terminal leave allowance is No. 3 on the new house calendar.

It was introduced by Rep. Rogers (D-Fla.))who asked two months ago that his bill be given the first number. However, the No. 1 and No. 2 spots went to the Republican tax reduction bills.

MAN OF THE FUTURE SOUNDS UNPLEASANT

PRINCETON, N. J.—(INS)—A description of the man of the future was given today by Prof. John B. S. Haldane, eminent British scientist.

Speaking before Princeton university's bicentiennial conference last night Dr. Haldane said:

"Present day society would regard him as a physical, mental and moral defective." He said the man of the future probably would develop slowly, reaching maturity at the age of 40 and then live for several centuries. He would be of high general intelligence by our standards and most individuals would have some special aptitude developed to the degree which we call genius. From our point of view he would be an unpleasant individual."

Let's Go! And Hear Bo—Jan. 13

One of the greatest crowds of sports fans in Mansfield is expected to turn out at the Coliseum, Jan. 13, when Indiana university's Bo McMillin appears for the annual News-Journal football banquet.

Advance sales on the 600 odd tickets circulated in the city for the event show a mounting enthusiasm even at this early date and ticket agencies predict even greater sales next week.

Voted "Man of the Year" in 1946, McMillin is nationally known as one of the best speakers on the football podium. The former All-American is head athletic director and head football mentor at Indiana.

McMillin will show color films of the 1946 Indiana-Nebraska grid game. And the News-Journal, for the first time, will make most-valuable-player awards to athletes picked by their teammates.

The 11th annual banquet was moved to the Coliseum to accommodate the many sports enthusiasts who want to join the News-Journal in honoring the Senior high and Madison players.

Tickets are available at the Tawse pharmacy, Brown's drug store on West Fourth street, at the City News, Sutter's and at the News-Journal business office. Admission is $2 per plate.

HOROSCOPE

For Sunday, Jan. 5.

Sunday's horoscope holds admonishment for a day of quiet, relaxation and well-chosen diversion, in which the impulses and emotions are held well in leash and the mentality switched to activities in which there is no incentive to excitement or erratic behavior. Study of advanced ideas and philosophies my prove advantageous, with scientific thought under strong impetus.

Those whose birthday it is may enjoy a year of creative thoughts with originality of ideas and patterns on advanced or inventive lines. Novel and unique suggestions, with fresh ways and means for attacking old techniques, are in line for surprising success, but all such attempts at innovation should be engineered on a sane and sound basis without erratic or emotional impulses which involve excitement and possible error.

A child born on this day may have original ideas of an inventive or creative newness, but an inclination to erratic or excitable conduct might be detrimental.

For Monday, Jan. 6.

Monday's astrological forecast is for a course of events that are likely to blow into proportions and portents of atomic explosive force, destructive and disastrous to the Nth degree. Under a fiery inner urge to express and exploit excessive energy, initiative and temperament, actions based on impulse and emotions are likely to burst all bounds, since judgment is relegated into the background. Thus the entire situation may be "meat" for tricksters, frauds and schemers.

Those whose birthday it is have an omen of a year of danger and disintegration, brought on by excess energies, hectic impulses and emotions, and all exaggerated by tumultuous and wild ideas, fancies or imagination. The mind is rather obscure, unreliable and excitable, inviting the sinister and fraudulent interest of tricksters and "crackpots." Shun all forms of intrigues and strange entanglements. Refrain from excited behavior.

A child born on this day will have highly stimulated energies and talents yet may be victimized by its explosive temperament and the wiles of dupes and tricksters.

You don't have to be an expert at the pirouette and entrechat to get a kick out of ballet. Many women are studying ballet to limber, slim or develop their bodies. Because of the tremendous interest in the ballet, night sessions have been inaugurated for business girls. Stenographers and models as well as housewives love this new way to trim and build their bodies.

In these exercises, Frances Rainer of the Ballet Theater illustrates how to use the various movements to best advantage. All of the port de bras (ballet exercises) can be done at home, she says.

If you find you need something to balance yourself, use the back of a chair which is weighted down with telephone books or some heavy object. If an exercise seems too strenuous don't try to take it all at once. It may take several trys before you can do a spread-eagle to perfection, but don't give up. The benefit you will derive from whipping up your circulation and concentrating on muscle control will be of tremendous help to you.

The important thing about these exercises taken from the ballet is that they add some interest to the otherwise dull 1-2-3-4 stretch routine which a woman with imagination will find dull and tiring.

Here's how to exercise the ballet way: Lunge . . . This is considered an evilent exercise for reducing the ls Frances Rainer of the Ballet heater, who posed for these picks, says the lunge will also gi tone to the leg muscles and stch the back muscles for supplss. Spread-Eagle . . . Is desid to whittle the thighs to siThigh, wide and handsome is tmoto here, says Frances. Hers the way you do it: Sit with legs outstretched, bend body foard touching one leg, then thether. This is also a leg and m exercise. Back Lunge . . . Ingals like this because it is eilent as a conditioner for thwaist and upper torso. Your wgt definitely won't go to waist ith this one, says our ballet mol Just retain the position illustrated for as long as you can and slide back in regular standing position. Do it as often as you can. Arabesque . . . You don't have to attempt to get your leg up as high as Miss Rainer does in this one—not the first few times anyway. Make sure your arms are in the right position, raise your leg as high as you can without bending the knee. After a while you'll notice it will be easier to lift your leg higher and higher. This is excellnet for the back, leg and hip muscles. Statuesque . . . This is tops as a tummy flattener and, simple as it looks, will be difficult at first. Sit with legs outstretched, arms in position, pull knees up to chest without moving your body. Wonderful for new mothers.

Bernard Mason's THE BOOKS OF INDIAN-CRAFTS AND COSTUMES is a treasure chest for all people who are interested in Indians. It is filled with photographs of war bonnets and feather crests, rosettes and bustles, arm bands, leg bands and vests and ever so many other articles that Indians wore or used as tools. With each picture are clear, simple directions for making the object in this illustration. The text describes each piece of apparel or tool, tells what tribes and which type of person wore it and what the various parts signify. It's the kind of a book that you pick up for a minute and are still looking at fifteen minutes later.

Louis liked to be six. He had more fun than anybody—except Julie. She was five and could do everything that Louis could do. In fact she could do one thing that Louis couldn't and that was ride Annette the cow. Annette would not let anyone else ride her. One day the children were in school, all but Peacherino who had skipped. Someone shouted, "Runaway horse!" All the children ran to see, and it wasn't a horse. It was Annette. She had forgotten to look and see who was getting on. Now she was running full speed across the field with poor Peacherino trying to stay on. "Annette reached the fence and pulled up with a jerk. Peacherino went sailing over her head, over the barbed wire and landed on his back in the meadow beyond." And after that Peacherino came to school—and he didn't like to talk about cows. That is only one of the funny things in BAYOU BOY by Eleanor Lattimore.

A favorite question of many people is, "What would you have done if . . . ?" Sometimes they ask, "What would you have done if you had lived in the time of Christ?" Caleb did His story is told in BEGGAR BOY OF GALILEE by Josephine Lau. Caleb's father was blind Bartimaeus. They were poor, their house was only a hut, and Caleb often had to steal in order to get enough food to eat. Then, into their dull, drab lives came a strange and wonderful story of a man named Jesus, a man who could heal the sick, make the lame walk and the blind to see. You would have done just what Caleb did, try to find this strange healer and beg him to help your father.

On the edge of Chicago their is a three story yellow house. It looks like any ordinary house but inside it is a wonderful place. This ordinary looking house is the Trailside Museum of Natural History or, as Virginia Moe calls it ANIMAL INN. As you wander around the museum you can see, and touch and play with John Rabbit, Tarbaby and Domino, the skunks, Chuckles the woodchuck or any number of other inhabitants of the house. Next best to going there is reading the stories Miss Moe has written. You'll come to feel that you know the animals and if you ever go to Chicago and visit "Animal Inn" it will be like meeting old friends.

In Anything

WASHINGTON — (U.P.) — Sen. Confusion P. Chaos was in charge of the U. S. senate, if there was a senate, which some senators (who weren't sure they were senators) doubted.

You'll get the idea best, I guess, if I tell about the gray-haired lady in pink who fought her way through the crowd outside the galleries, finagled her way into the sanctum of the press, eyed the correspondents beating their typewriters, and then spied me.

I wasn't doing anything. Just sitting. Not even thinking.

"Sir," she cried breathlessly, "is there any possible way for me to get in there?"

"Well now, lady," I began. "It's pretty crowded, but . . ."

"Yes I know," she interrupted, on the verge of tears. "But my husband's about to be sworn in as a senator and I've got to see him. I've just got to."

That's what she thought. That's what a lot of fellows thought, including Sen.-Elect John W. Bricker of Ohio, who had the tables set up with poinsettia decorations in one of the private dining rooms for a swearing in luncheon. Haw, haw, haw.

* * *

NEVER DID Robert's Rules of Parliamentary Order take such a beating. The idea was to bring in the newly-elected senators in alphabetical order and swear 'em in, so the senate could elect some officers and get to work.

Number two, alphabetically speaking, was Bilbo, Theo. G., in a rumpled brown suit, and a necktie with horizontal red and gray stripes. Sen. Homer Ferguson of Michigan tried to get the floor, but Sen. Glen H. Taylor, the crooning cowboy from Idaho, caught the eye of the chair with a gesture like the throwing of a lariat. And as one of my brighter cohorts put it:

The senate was off to a stop.

The details of the fight you may read in other columns of this paper. Here you may learn about some of the results, including the fact that the senators-elect weren't senators at all. They weren't even on the payroll and, of course, they were worried about it.

Sen. Wayne Morse of Oregon eyed the crowds of bystanders on the senate floor, including a couple of pretty girls who knelt in the aisle. His, he said, didn't add to the dignity of the U. S. senate and what about Rule 33, which prohibits spectators on the floor, unless they're clerks on official business. He said it should be enforced.

"No," cried Senator-Elect William Langer of N.D. "Not my wife, too. She campaigned with me all over North Dakota. She helped me get elected and she's got a right to see me sworn in. I want her here."

* * *

SO THAT was put to a vote. The ayes had it. Sergeant-at-Arms Wall Doxey was ordered to clear the senate of everybody except senators and clerks. He walked up to each bystander and said:

"Are you a clerk of the senate?"

To a man and a woman everybody he approached said, yes. Doxey gave up after a while, without a single person, Langer's wife included, being out. Then somebody remembered that Langer had no right to say anything because he was not a senator. Somebody else remembered that the vote, consequently, was a phoney. It was removed from the records and on went the battle over Bilbo. When I left the in the day, Sen. Elmer Thomas of Okla., was regaling his colleagues with an account of how Oklahoma became a state.

Below, in the private dining room, Bricker and perhaps a third of his guests were eating their lunch. The poinsettias were droopy, the food was cold and Bricker still wasn't a senator. The fault of Senator Confusion P. Chaos, obviously.

Barclay On Bridge

WHENEVER your partner has made a business double of the opponents' contract, he has become the boss of your side. In every lead or play you make then in defense against their contract, you should respect the wishes he has indicated and put up the kind of defense his double seems to have requested. If your hand is such that it is impossible to do as he asked—such as having a void in the suit he probably wishes led—then you ordinarily should do something for which you can feel sure he is prepared. In any event, don't try to surprise him with some other move, unless there is something about your hand entirely different from what he would expect.

Reflecting on that bidding, and trying to figure out what lead East desired, when he doubled the slam, West decided that a diamond was the first choice. But West could not lead a diamond, for the very simple reason that he had none. Next he thought of his own hearts, but banished that idea from his mind because South's cue-bid of the suit could very well indicate a blank in it. To open the unbid suit of clubs was unthinkable, as that lead would surprise his partner—the worst of all leading sins after a bidding double.

That process of elimination left him just one alternative—trumps. So he led his only spade, and South walked in. Two trump rounds, one heart ruff and one heart put on the diamond A made the contract a cinch.

West should have reckoned that, with the great strength-showing of his opponents, South was much more likely to have the heart A than East. Unable to lead the diamonds — lucky he couldn't—he should have opened his own suit. East would have ruffed and returned a diamond for the setting ruff. All of which, however, doesn't prove that East made a good double. If he had kept his mouth shut, West would have led a heart.

Brothers Call Each Other Crazy After Wild Bus Ride

PORTSMOUTH — (AP) — Two brothers who, victims said, beat a Greyhound bus driver and sprayed bullets among 23 passengers during a terrifying hour ride described one another as "crazy" today while police checked their stories that they had been hospitalized as psychoneurotic war veterans.

The brothers, Hobart Griffith, 26, and Ray Griffith, 20, were in jail, their arraignment delayed while their claims of mental illness were investigated.

Deputy Sheriff Burl Justice said when questioned, each brother declared the other "was crazy and had been treated for war-incurred psychoneurosis at Huntington, W. Va." An investigation was being made of the statements, the deputy added.

The Griffiths, who moved from Wheelwright, Ky., to Huntington, W. Va., recently, boarded the bus there.

"Boy, I was scared to death all the time," driver C. L. Stillwell, 36, of Charleston, W. Va., said as he recalled the 30-mile trip along twisting highways from Ironton to nearby Wheelersburg between midnight and 1 a. m. yesterday.

Driver Hospitalized.

Stillwell was hospitalized here and 22 stitches were required for head and face wounds he suffered during the wild ride in which he said he was thumped on the head with a pistol and made to drive with a jagged whisky bottle held to his throat.

Only one of the passengers, who cowered and prayed as the bus lurched through the darkness, was injured. He was Lawrence Steele of Cincinnati, treated for a nose fracture.

Hobart, charged with shooting with intent to kill, was the man who beat the driver, justice said. Ray was charged with assault. The shots Hobart fired, Justice said, went through the floor and into the driver's seat.

Stillwell said the brothers had been drinking and boarded the bus over his objections. When he rebuked them for their language after the bus left Ironton, the excitement began.

Hobart took command of the bus and stepped on the gas while Stillwell steered.

"I don't know how we got through the sharp S-curve underpass at Hanging Rock," the driver said, explaining that it was "on a steep curve and we were doing 40 miles an hour."

At Wheelersburg, Deputy Justice said, Hobart announced he was going to shoot all the war veterans on the bus and drive it into the Ohio river.

"You're first," Hobart told the driver, "but I don't want to shoot you sitting down."

Stillwell had to stop the bus to stand up and then the passengers overpowered the Griffiths and ousted them from the vehicle. The two men walked to a nearby garage and surrendered meekly, but as passengers told of their experiences an angry crowd of Wheelersburg citizens attacked the Griffiths and shereiff's deputies had to rescue them.

Bilbo Reflects Civil War Dissension

WHILE the Civil war is assumed to have been ended in 1865, its reverberations continue to be felt in such incidents as that of the notorious Theodore Bilbo being elected to the United States senate from the "Deep South" state of Mississippi, which still reflects the animosities of pre-Civil war days and the hatreds that followed afterward.

Bilbo, with his preachment of "white supremacy," and his vitriolic attacks on the right of Negroes to vote in Mississippi, has been a serious retarding influence in the education of Negroes to the point of making intelligent use of the ballot. If this were the extent of his guilt it would appear sufficient to bar him from the nation's highest legislative body—which must surely regard the Constitution of the United States as basic law.

There is, however, the clear-cut revelation of Bilbo's connivance with war contractors, to his personal gain and at the expense of Americans who were striving earnestly to provide the manpower and money needed to win the war.

There are those who feel that admission of Bilbo to the senate would be a shrewd political move on the part of the Republican majority, as he would be accepted as representing the worst side of the Democratic party and might even be regarded as the spokesman for the whole group of Southern states which constitute practically the only dependably Democratic support since their secession from the union.

Commenting on the present situation, Marquis Childs says: "A new leadership is coming into being in the South. The new leaders have only contempt for Bilbo and what he stands for . . . yet they continue to give lip service to the outworn habits of the past."

Bilbo reflects the "Old South" as surely as did those who precipitated the rebellion in 1861—and if a "new leadership" is destined to become effective it would appear that 80 years is long enough time for more to be accomplished than is evidenced by seeking to put such a character as "The Man" Bilbo, in the United States senate.

Counter-Action To 'Portal' Suit

IF THE PORTAL-TO-PORTAL controversy were not so dangerous it would be funny. Claims for pay for time spent "on the job" but not actually working now have reached the absurd total of almost $3,000,000,000. The suits are snowballing faster than the national debt!

But is industry going to be bankrupted by all this? Why, not at all—if the courts treat industry as they have treated labor. For now the Rockwell Manufacturing company of Pittsburgh, which is being sued for $6,000,000 in portal claims, has turned around and filed what amounts to a counter-suit for $15,000,000 for damages from "slowdowns."

If a union can sue for time spent in changing clothes, why can't an employer sue for time lost in deliberate idleness?

Of course, one good thing may come out of these suits and counter-suits Abuses on both sides may be cut down. A fair definition of work and the work week may result from court airing of grievances by both management and labor.

Mark-Down In Prices Getting Started

FOR THE first time in years the customer is having his innings. Retail stores are offering bargains. The holiday interval on the calendar brought sales in many department stores. In food markets prices are definitely on the down grade, with butter, for weeks a luxury item, dropping to a point almost within reach of the average purse. True, there was a brisk post-Christmas spending of gift checks, but that slackened off within a few days. Retailers report that buyers are still hunting mark-down goods, and this is expected to continue.

The law of supply and demand has been freed of war-time shackles and the consumer has developed a shyness to high prices. This is wholesome economy. If the cost of living can be brought within reason, the big argument for wage-increases, and consequent threat of strikes will be spiked. The adjustment will give opportunity for true values to emerge, and for certain wage levels, like those for teachers, for example, to catch up with those of other economic groups.

Get Ready For 'Spell of Weather'

IT IS by no means fully established by weather experts that "bad years come in sevens" or any other dependable number, but the government prophets in Washington have thumbs down on 1947. Last year, it seems, was too mild to repeat its rather gentle performance.

The boss forecaster in Washington is not indulging any illusions. We have had some bad times even in the recent lucky years. But even in normal periods the weather god seems to have it in for us. and almost inevitably a lot of evil things happen.

So it seems wise to take the attitude of national weather expert I. R. Tannehill, who says "even in an average year a lot of terrible things happen" and it will probably be all the worse now for the unusually fine weather we have been accustomed to latterly. We mustn't let exceptional years fool us, he says. Normally the world has 65,000,000 thunder storms, and there's no reason to think we can avoid what is awaiting us. The problem is one of adjusting ourselves to take any kind of weather gracefully.

Prices Keyed To Higher Incomes

THE NEW housing program, says Ray Sawyer, national commander of American Veterans of World War II, "looks okay for the veteran making $5,000 a year. For the 90 per cent making less than half that, the promise of immediate low-cost housing is gone."

A lot of prices besides those of houses appear to be planned for the man making $5,000 a year—or more.

Anent the housing shortage, one poet is complaining that he can't even find a garret to starve in.

It's at least interesting to note that "two-pants suits are now legal"—if you can find them.

THEN CAME THE DAWN

Fallacy In Nathan's CIO Report, Based On 'Theory of Averages'

By RAYMOND MOLEY

ROBERT R NATHAN, principal author of the much discussed CIO report on wage policy, has written to me objecting to a criticism of him published in this column two weks ago My point in that column did not concern the detailed contents of his report, but the fact that Mr. Nathan, as a public official a year ago, and Mr. Nathan, as a consultant for the CIO, held identical views.

Because of the prominence of Mr. Nathan, that identity goes a long way toprove that, to an increasing degree, the Roosevelt administration came to represent the policies of a single pressure groupand not the general public interest.

This identity of viewpoint Mr. Nathan does not deny. He says: "It so happens that I undertook this study for the Congress of Industrial Organizations because it is my belief now, as it was a year ago when I was in the government, that thewelfare of all our people necessitated the kind of economic policies which would help avoid inflation and deflation. You state in your column that the report on which I worked while in the government represented special pleading rather than dealing with facts. Actually both reports are related to a public interest."

Mr. Nathan then summarizes the purpose of his report: "It is our belief that the present situation carries within it the germs of a recession with unemployment, bankruptcy and business losses, rather than continued profits. . . . The danger to our democratic free enterprise system lies in such resignation (to inevitability of boom and bust) and I think even former liberals would understand the threat to our freedom which arises out of recurring depressions.

It was not my intention in the earlier column to debate the Nathan report. That has been abundantly cared for by others. The point I made and that I want to reinforce, once more, is a deeper question of economic philosophy and political policy.

The basic theory behind the Nathan report, as a public official and, later, as a CIO consultant, is what may be called the "theory of the average." It was the firm intention of many people in the second and third Roosevelt terms to enforce uniform regulations relating to wages, prices and profits upon whole industries and series of industries.

This was advocated in the name of high-sounding objectives such as the public interest and the elimination of booms and busts. The CIO being a vertical and inter-industry union obviously believed in this theory.

The result of such a theory, enforced by a government sympathetic to it, would be the rapid extinction of small business and the ultimate consolidation of all private business. It would mean the end of competition and free enterprise. Marxists have always predicted the death of small business as a step in the evolution toward socialism.

It was this drift of the New Deal toward collectivism and its political alliance with the CIO which ultimately lost it the public favor it enjoyed in earlier days. And one of those who was chiefly instrumental in that movement was Mr. Nathan himself.

It is the very fact that he identifies the public interest with the interests of the CIO which made him, in my opinion, an unfortunate choice for high office in government.

That is what I said in my earlier column and that is what I still believe.

Government should and must avoid the identification of any special interest with the public interest. It must be above and beyond all pressure groups.

Looking Back

THIS DAY IN HISTORY

Sir Isaac Pitman, famous English educator who invented and popularized a system of shorthand, was born on January 4, 1813.

Dave Boone Says:

I SEE where his workers have sued Henry Ford for a total of nearly three million dollars for portal-to-portal back pay and I can't help wondering where the country would have been if Henry, back in the days when he was building his fist auto, kept checking on the portals in that old woodshed, worrying over the time it took to lay out his tools and figuring out who to sue for time lost in putting on his overalls.

I get a laugh, too, thinking of Orville Wright saying to Wilbur, "now, before we waste any more time on this airplane idea let's figure out how long it takes us to change our pants."

And Thomas Edison shoving aside his experiments with the movie camera, the telephone, the electric light and the talking machine until he makes sure that the trip from the shop gate to the bench ain't to wearisome.

And I wonder what kind of a place this would be if the builders of America who went from frontier to frontier, mountain to mountain and river to river had thought in terms of portals.

Calvin A. Byers

Farmer's Diary: "Welcoming New Year."

NEW YEAR'S EVE was quiet at Honey Creek. It was cold and blustery outside. Snowflakes rode eerily out of the dark to swirl against our lighted windows and ride off again, above the eaves. Lights in all the neighbors' houses were misted and blurred. Above the slope the deep woods roared as the fickle blasts rose and fell.

Our hearth fire was warm—the house still held the pine and spice of holiday time—from the cellar the fragrance of apples. We were all at home, by choice. Big Sister, home from college, visited with all of us . . . bringing a fresh viewpoint, and a critical appreciation that we relished. Perspective changes rapidly when one leaves home . . . it is only important to hold fast to that which is good. We do not expect our children to be copies of ourselves . . . heaven forbid! Our daughter is still our first child . . . her mother's and mine.

The hour grew late, and the two little boys expressed half-hearted sleepy wishes to stay up and welcome the New Year! "Dad, did you always watch the old year out, as you and mother will do tonight?" asked one.

"Not exactly," I said. "New Year's Eve was different among the Pennsylvania Dutch, where I lived. There it was a custom to leave an oil light burning near one front window until the clock struck 12. It was a grandfather clock—a tall one—that rang the old year out. Then the men, young and old, would grab the muzzle-loader guns that stood in a handy corner, and hurry outside. They would fire into the air, until the broadside from every farmhouse sounded like a grand salute. Bells would ring out in all the steeples, and shouts would be relayed down and up, throughout every valley."

"Where did such customs start from?" one small boy wondered.

"Perhaps from southern Germany, where your great-great grandfather—and mine, was born. From these same regions were brought the folk stories, the ghost tales, the games and songs and neighborhood customs, the stress on care and kindness to farm animals.

"Often at our home, young people gathered for games and food. Fruit—and sugar kuchen were baked for New Year's as well as for Christmas. Sometimes a minister would hold a watch night service at the country church. There would be hymns and prayers of thankfulness for the good things past and the hope of good things to come."

Wearily, one by one, they climbed up the narrow ladder and were heard no more. At twelve I stepped out into the roaring wind that swept our porch, and fancied I heard the volleys of oldtime guns, and the ringing of distant bells.

Summary of Week's Happenings

Republican Congress Takes Over, Awaits 'State of Union' Message

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

HARRY S. TRUMAN is not the first president of the United States to face an opposition congress. In his "State of the Union" message scheduled for delivery Monday, Mr. Truman will reveal in broad outline the platform on which he must appeal for bi-partisan support in the 80th congress. Harmony or at least a practical working agreement between the Democratic chief executive and the Republican-dominated congress must be achieved unless there is to be a repetition of historic Capitol Hill deadlocks.

In the last half century, three other presidents, Herbert Hoover, Woodrow Wilson and Grover Cleveland, had to deal with opposition congresses. In each case there was fireworks and also in each case the party holding the presidency lost the next election.

Historic League Dispute.

Hoover faced a Democratic house and a senate where insurgent Republicans of the farm bloc held the balance of power. Facing depression, Hoover broke with them over the soldier's bonus and relief.

Wilson, like Mr. Truman, had to cope with postwar inflation, high living costs and an epidemic of strikes. Wilson's break with congress was over foreign policy and after five months of bitter wrangling the Republican-dominated senate refused to ratify the peace treaty embodying the covenant of the League of Nations.

Democrat Cleveland faced a hostile Republican congress after the panic of 1893. Although many Democratic legislators were "free silver" men, Cleveland supported the gold standard of the Republicans. Insurgent house Democrats joined Republicans to pass high tariff legislation against his leadership.

The storm clouds looming before Mr. Truman and the 80th congress appear more on the domestic than the international front. American sentiment is pretty well solidified behind the United Nations and there seems to be a hard core of bi-partisan unity behind the policies enunciated by Secretary of State James F. Byrnes.

Grave national issues, heavy with controversy, confront this executive and legislative team, however. Among the most pressing is labor legislation, but other issues include tax cuts, the draft, which expires March 15; merger of the armed forces at home, and congressional (streamlined) reorganization, which while passed by the 79th congress does not bind the 80th.

Declares Hostilities Over.

Just before the end of the old year, Truman proclaimed hostilities officially over, thus automatically ending government war emergency powers under numerous laws. In the near future, the president told newsmen, he will recommend that congress end the state of war.

At Home

Army Urges Training.

The war department is training its sights on an old objective, universal military training. The army is renewing its campaign by revising slightly for the new Republican congress its proposals which the old 79th congress found too hot to handle and left in committee.

Before the last session, the war department called for a solid year of military training for the country's youth. Now it wants only six months of continuous training, with a second six months to be made up in part-time activity with such organizations as the National Guard and the Reserve Officers Corps.

In discussing objections to military training, the war department says on cost that the expenses of only three days of World War II would pay for a year of military training.

To Veto or Not to Veto.

The controversial and crucial problem of the atom rose higher but apparently no nearer solution in the councils of the United Nations. The United States declared it would not surrender the secrets of the A-bomb until the U. N. ruled out the veto on punishment of violators. Russia refused to surrender its right of veto.

The U. N. Atomic Energy Commission, after wrestling with the problem, finally handed up to the Security Council the American plan for atomic control, with its provision wiping out the veto. It won 10 commission votes. Russia and Poland abstaining.

* * *

Test Case In Boston.

A quirk of the weather brought New England its first treason case since Revolutionary times. Within sight of Boston's historic Faneuil hall—cradle of American liberty—a 23-man federal grand jury was convened to hear charges against Robert Best, 51, and Douglas Chandler, 54, two American newspapermen accused of serving as Nazi mouthpieces during the war.

Indicted three years ago, Best and Chandler were scheduled for trial in Washington but storms forced their plane down in Massachusetts. A 150-year-old law provides that in such cases defendants be brought before the federal court nearest where they first set foot on United States soil.

* * *

World Bank Ready.

More than 16 months after the end of the war, the 15 billion dollar World Bank is ready for business. Its lending policy is likely to be more liberal than the average American financier would follow.

The bank's executive directors—12 men from different nations—took part in the Bretton Woods conference in 1944 where the emphasis was on helping needy nations. Many speak for such needy nations; as potential borrowers, they would like liberal treatment.

* * *

Colleges Jam-Packed.

The 27th annual survey of American colleges and universities shows a record of 1,718,862 enrolled students at 668 universities and four-year colleges throughout the nation. Of these 714,477 are war veterans.

In addition, Dr. Raymond Walters, poll director, received reports of 350,000 students, including 150,000 veterans, enrolled in 650 junior colleges and other thousands in institutions not on the accredited list.

Dr. Walters said that in the face of unprecedented competition for admission to college and universities, women applicants have had a square deal. The U. S. office of education estimates, he said, that the 660,500 women in 1,719 institutions of higher learning represent an increase of 94,500 over last fall's peak enrollment, and that for the country as a whole there are two men to each woman student in contrast to 1945 when there were three women to two men.

Abroad

Strife In Palestine.

There was no apparent lessening of tension in the Holy Land where the British between 600,000 Jews and 1,200,000 Arabs sought a solution of the Palestine problem. A new London conference, scheduled for January 14, seemed foredoomed to failure like its predecessor last September which was boycotted by both the Jews and Arabs of Palestine.

The World Zionist congress, representing 2,500,000 members in 61 countries, voted at Basle, Switzerland, not to participate in the parley. Palestine Arabs indicated earlier they had no intention of attending.

British hopes seemed pinned on Jewish and Arab acceptance of a plan to partition Palestine into Arab and Jewish spheres. This proposal has drawn united opposition from the Arabs.

In turning down participation in the London talks, the Zionist Congress rejected the advice of Dr. Chaim Weizmann, 73, Jewish leader for 30 years. He advocated working with England in the eventual hope of obtaining a Jewish state but delegates voted not to attend unless Britain guaranteed the principle of independence for Palestine.

Quotes

Philip Murray, president of CIO: "We are at the turning point in our economic life, in the midst of a boom-and-bust economic psychology. There is not an economist in America who does not predict a bust to follow our present boom."

Alfred P. Sloan, chairman of General Motors: "The idea that a wage increase is justified soundly by an increase in living costs is an economic absurdity. Such a policy can only result—and as a matter of fact, is resulting—in an unending spiral of increasing wages and prices."

How the People Think.

The Harvard professor who describes Hollywood film society as a "synthetic, childless population of comparatively simple people without too much intellect," may have something, but he hasn't said it all.

The fact is that when we wish to whip up patriotic enthusiasm for the purchase of war bonds, somebody from Hollywood is asked to be first on the band wagon.

When the community chest lags, or the national Parade of Dimes comes along, or it comes time to recruit for the WAC Corps or the horse marines, the show can't start until the stars are assembled and photographed.

Whether all of this is necessary, we have no idea; but we can take it that if a considerable portion of our population didn't think it necessary, it wouldn't go on year after year, and grow worse by the season.—Detroit News.

"The Little Woman" Starts Asking Questions.

WASHINGTON—There was an expression during the war: "It's later than you think!"

It is applicable again to another situation.

To the cost of living, and to all those rosy promises that once price controls were off there'd be plenty of production and plenty of goods at cheap prices. That's what business and industry told us.

It just hasn't happened.

This isn't a lesson in economics. The economists have their explanations. They tell us, as a pretty little booklet just issued by the Committee on Public Debt Policy tells us, that price rises follow every war. They have through our history.

"Each time, the cost of living soared," it says. "The experience has been painful; but more painful still has been the deflation which has always followed, bringing with it distress to the farmer and unemployment to the wage earner."

This is not a lesson in economics, but a lesson in hard facts. It is the lesson that every housewife knows today. She handles the family budget. She's having a bad time. If she knows her husband can afford it, she is asking for more each week.

But millions don't bother to ask. For husbands on a fixed wage or salary can yield up no more. It just isn't there.

And "the little woman" is beginning to ask some embarrassing questions. She's beginning to ask about all those promises that things would be cheaper. Big men were giving interviews predicting all that.

It's later than you think.

She's also having, in her woman's way, a little joke, an ironic joke, on herself. Not so long ago she was America's No. 1 heroine. She would force prices down—the "little woman in the home." She saw herself glorified in cartoons, and read beautiful things about herself in editorials.

For a day she enjoyed the vicarious thrill of the pin-up girl. But the day has passed. The nice story about how she was going to bring down prices by picking and choosing in her shopping hasn't had the happy ending. Prices still are soaring. And the family must eat.

She's not an expert in economics, except of the simplest sort, the kind that says so much money can buy only so much at such and such a price. And she's beginning to get suspicious that somebody is taking advantage of her and her family, somewhere in the intricate system.

Some people, she has discovered, have been holding back things she needed. Now they are on the shelves. But look at the prices! Any man knows this story from his wife. And some of her questions are getting dangerous.

This writer well remembers one so-called "recession" back in 1937-38. He was in Detroit when there were 75,000 people on relief and in Cleveland when jobless people were camping in city hall.

It is doubtful if people in this country will take that sort of thing any more. They know they don't have to be considered statistics. They are human beings.

It is beginning to get late from "the little woman's" viewpoint. It's rather important. This, again, is not a lesson in economics, but just a little of what goes on in our land, and it is rather important to business and industry which promised so much, and to our system, and perhaps to some people in authority in government, too.

The Word Made Flesh — ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Scripture—I John 1.

By Alfred L. Buescher

"There was a man sent from God, and his name was John. The same came for a witness, to bear witness of the Light, that all men through Him might believe."

Priests and Levites asked John who he was, and he answered, "I am the voice of one crying in the wilderness, Make straight the way of the Lord," not Christ or one of the prophets.

The next day John saw Jesus coming toward him, and he said to those with him: "This is He of whom I said, After me cometh a man which is preferred before me."

The next day again John stood with two of his disciples, "and looking upon Jesus as He walked, he saith Behold the Lamb of God"

MEMORY VERSE—John 1:4.

Education Director Hissong Hopes for Teacher Increase

COLUMBUS—(INS)—State Education Director Clyde Hissong found a "faint ray of hope" today in a statistical report showing an increase for the first time since 1939 in standard teaching certificates.

Teacher education and certification supervisor Harold J. Bowers reported that 470 more beginning teachers were granted certificates in 1946 than in 1945.

Hissong commented:

"The prospect for better professional salaries for better work in the socially important task of training future citizens is beginning to interest a few more persons to become school teachers."

Hissong cautioned against over-optimism, however, declaring that the picture was "dark and otherwise overcast." The director pointed out that the shortage among elementary teachers remains particularly acute.

Bowers' report emphasized the fact that more than one of every four teachers in county rural schools was substandard with only a temporary certificate. The median salary among rural elementary teachers was only $1,420.

Of Ohio's 39,91[illegible] public elementary and high school teachers, Bowers pointed out that 6,138 were granted temporary certificates between Aug. 1, 1946, and the first of this year at the request of school superintendents who certified that qualified teachers were not available.

Bowers said that many more elementary teachers will soon be needed because of enrollment of "war babies," some of whom are already nearing school age. In 1946 the enrollment of six-year-olds was slightly less than 100,000. By 1952, it is expected to be 130,000.

BAD WEATHER STOPS SEARCH FOR 9 AIRMEN

Byrd Expedition Plane Fails to Return After Flight.

ABOARD THE U. S. S. MOUNT OLYMPUS — (INS) — Adverse weather conditions kept flying operations at a standstill today on the three-pronged Antarctic expedition, preventing a search for nine airmen missing since Monday on a seaplane scouting flight.

Pending an improvement in the weather, the ships' radios kept up a barrage of messages in an effort to reach the navy PBM and radio operators maintained a constant vigil for a possible signal from the missing craft.

There was no way of determining the fate of the missing Martin Mariner which left the seaplane tender Pine Island for a reconnaissance flight over the Roosevelt and Bellinshausen seas.

The last message from the two-engined plane carrying four officers and five enlisted men was received Monday morning. Its position was given as about 250 miles south of the Pine Island, a member of the Eastern task force.

Meanwhile, the central command group was at least freed from the ice pack late Thursday night and began steaming southward.

The order for one-third speed ahead came after the vessels had been locked in the ice since midday Wednesday.

The next goal of the task force is a small bay 40 miles to the south where Rear Admiral Richard H. Cruzen may order a layover while an extensive survey is made by helicopter and icebreaker of the area yet to be traversed.

The five ships of the command group led by the icebreaker Northwind skirted past towering mountains of ice and fast frozen bergs.

Cruzen declared that the route ahead to the bay—which he expected to reach in 14 hours—should be much easier than the area already covered.

It was estimated that the vessels may have to penetrate the icepack for another 200 miles before reaching the hoped for open water of Ross sea.

Cruzen said that if the going becomes difficult and treacherous again "we can always go back north," meaning retracing the path and finding another entrance to Little America.

WAGNER SEEKS TO NIP CHANGE IN LABOR LAWS

Senator Proposes New Federal Mediation Board.

WASHINGTON — (UP) — Sen. Robert F. Wagner, D., N. Y., father of the Labor Relations Act, today proposed a new federal mediation board in an effort to head off Republican plans for tough anti-strike legislation.

As the tide of GOP-sponsored strike-control bills began to flood congressional hoppers, Wagner announced that he himself would introduce legislation to set up a three-man board within the labor department with authority to facilitate the settlement of labor-management disputes.

He warned that "drastic anti-labor legislation" could only result in a "reactionary era" similar to the period following World War I. He said his bill would not outlaw strikes, but would merely set up a board to encourage labor and management to settle controversies without work stoppages.

Wants Strong Control.

But his successor as labor committee chairman—Sen. Robert A. Taft, R., O.—made it clear that the Republicans have in mind much stronger strike-control legislation.

In a nationwide broadcast last night Taft said that any GOP-sponsored bill would contain the main parts of the Case bill President Truman vetoed last year, including provisions:

1. To make labor unions liable in the courts for their contracts, (2) to discourage foremen's unions (3) to outlaw secondary boycotts and (4) to set up mediation and arbitration machinery.

Taft said that he intends to begin hearings on a labor measure without delay and that he expected to have it on the senate floor before March 1. Rep. Francis Case, R., S. D., indicated that, he, too, planned to re-introduce his bill in the house within the next few days.

Bills Flood House.

In the lower chamber, the flood of bills was so great that only four could be made public. Three were introduced by Republicans and one by Rep. Howard W. Smith, D., Va., a member of the Republican-southern Democratic coalition that pushed through the Case bill last year.

Here are the main features of the four new bills:

1. Smith's bill would amend the Wagner Act to require compulsory arbitration in industries vitally affecting the economy.

2. A bill by Rep. Clare E. Hoffman, R., Mich., would outlaw strikes in public utilities.

3. Another by Hoffman would bar portal-to-portal pay suits recently authorized by the supreme court.

4. A measure by five Republicans would guarantee workers in vital industries the same working conditions as employes in other industries.

The Republicans were Reps. James C. Auchincloss, N. J., John W. Heselton, Mass., Clifford P. Chase, N. J., Robert Hale, Me., and Christian A. Herter, Mass.

In the senate, Sen. Wayne Morse, R., Ore., a member of Wagner's pro-labor bloc, told reporters that he intended to offer a bill to set up an independent quasi-judicial board to mediate disputes.

Tygers Lose Overtime Battle, 45 to 43

SPORTS ROUND UP

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

NEW YORK — (AP) — There'll be a lot of talk about shifts at the Football Coaches Association meeting this weekend. . . . One subject for discussion in the rules section is the "double shift," a still-legal device which tends to draw opposing teams offside. . . . And then there's job shifting. A couple of dozen fairly prominent coaches either have found new jobs since the grid season ended or are looking for them. . . . Incidentally, Charlie Bachman, who was reported as going into the insurance business after he was replaced by Biggie Munn at Michigan State, now wants to stay in the coaching trade. . . . Other recent reports have it that Maryland has been making eyes at Oklahoma's Jim Tatum and that Stu Holcomb, Army end coach, has been glancing toward Cornell.

* * *

TODAY'S GUEST STAR

John Mooney, Salt Lake Telegram: "Like General Eisenhower, the future generals at West Point aim to be first in peace, first in war, even though it means dropping Notre Dame and other grid titans from the schedule to insure it."

* * *

SPORTS BEFORE YOUR EYES

The Rhode Island U. basketball team has averaged 108 points in its four games so far, but hasn't met the kind of opposition it can expect from St. John's tonight. . . . The "700" bowling clubs of America, with membership of more than 2,000 bowlers who have hit that figure, will hold their 1947 tournaments Jan. 11 to 19. . . . The National Football leaguers are chuckling because their 1945 playoff game at Cleveland paid off at about $500 per winning player more than the 1946 All-America conference game, which drew a bigger gate. . . . Seems they use different systems of cutting the receipts.

WEEK-END ITEMS

Jerry Kelly of the Boston pro basketball Celtics is a hair stylist in the off-season. And probably he gets in somebody's hair on the court. . . . George Garland, who used to object to those very brief oarsmen's trunks when he rowed for Princeton 15 years ago, is secretary of the National Institute of Diaper Services.

TOMMY BLOOR KNOTS GAME NEAR FINISH

Lima Central Scores Eight In Extra Period.

Those drama-packed finishes are getting to be a habit on the Mansfield Senior high school basketball court.

Last night was no exception as Coach Vern Hoffman's Tygers battled to the last ditch before succumbing to a fast Lima Central team, 45 to 43, in overtime. It was the Tygers third loss in eight games and the first time that they have bowed in a close game.

Mansfield put up a great fight in the final four minutes to send the contest into the extra-period. Central moved into a five-point lead at the outset of the final quarter, the longest of the game, 33 to 28.

Ralph Majors, playing his best game of the season, rammed home a set shot but Dave Temple countered with a free throw for Central. Ollie Cline sunk a one-hander from the sidelines for Mansfield and Jack Sweeney counted another foul for Lima.

Nick Gagich, Mansfield, sunk two straight gratis shots to pare the lead to one-point and again Central hit from the foul line, Jim Hoff getting this one. Gagich and Dick Dawe, Central, traded foul shots as the game headed into its final minute with Lima leading, 37 to 35.

Tommy Bloor fired a one-hander from far out to knot the score with the clock reading only 27 seconds. Ollie Cline had a chance to send Mansfield ahead nine seconds later but missed connections, one of the few times either team was unsuccessful from the foul line.

Dawe and Majors traded baskets to open the overtime period and Central went four points ahead, 43-49, on field goals by Dawe and Temple. Majors connected again for the Tygers and Jim Hoff sunk the winning two-pointer for Lima. Chuck Sisco got the final Mansfield basket in the closing seconds.

Mansfield showed its greatest first quarter punch of the season in running up a 16 to 12 margin. However, Central moved in front at the half, 24 to 21 and led 31 to 27 as the final period opened.

Both teams fired 73 shots from the court with the Dragons having the slight edge on connections, 18 to 17. From the gratis line, Central made nine of 13 and Mansfield nine of 14.

Central played without its ace point-maker Bill Sharp, who suffered a sprained ankle in practice late Thursday. However, Hoff took up the scoring slack with 15 points and Dawe, Sharp's replacement, counted nine, including four in the overtime period. Dawe missed a free throw with 28 seconds remaining.

Bloor and Majors led the Tyger scorers with 11 and 10 points respectively.

The Dragons reserve poured on the coal in the second half to outdistance the Tyger sophomores, 41 to 23. Lima led at the quarter, 10 to 7, and at the half, 15 to 12. However, the last two quarters saw the visitors outscore Mansfield, 26 to 11.

Bo McMillin Has Stories Aplenty For Grid Fete

One Saturday afternoon an end was snagging passes all over the gridiron much to the discomfort of the opposing coach.

He called to one of his sub halfbacks and said, in effect, "Get in there and watch that guy, he's ruining us. Now watch him." The sub galloped on the field and on the first play the troublesome flanker grabbed a pass and scored.

The coach jerked the sub and angrily demanded, "Didn't I tell you to watch that end." The lad replied, "You sure did coach and I don't believe I ever watched an end that looked sweeter catching a pass."

This tale may or may not have originated with nimble-witted Bo McMillin. But he will have plenty of the same when he addresses the crowd at the 11th and greatest News-Journal football banquet at the North Lake park Coliseum on Jan. 13.

Ashland High School Rallies To Defeat Shelby Five, 35-31

ASHLAND—Ashland high school maintained its jinx over the Shelby Whippets here last night by defeating the Richland county aggregation, 35 to 31.

Ashland now has piled up 20 straight victories over Shelby and last night's decision was the A's fifth in six games and the fourth in a row. Coach C. E. Taylor's club has lost only to Norwalk this season.

Shelby, going after its fourth win in seven games, moved in front at the quarter 11 to 9 and held an 18 to 16 advantage at the half. However, the Taylor Tots began hitting in the third quarter and took over the lead 27 to 23 at the start of the final eight minutes.

Dick Messner, Ashland's great point-gatherer, pounded home 12 points to top the scoring column. He has accounted for 94 points in six games, an average of 15.7 a game. Dick Seitz led the Whippets with 10 markers.

Ashland won the reserve contest, 28 to 27.

Ashland plays at Mansfield Senior high Tuesday night while Shelby travels to Galion. The Whippets meet Willard in a Northern Ohio league game Friday night at Shelby. The Shelby club leads the NOL with two victories and no defeats.

Play Final Bowl Contest In Texas

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. — (AP) — The nation's last bowl game will be played off today—a hangover from New Year's when ice and sub-freezing weather caused a three-day postponement of the clash of Hardin-Simmons and Denver university in the Alamo bowl.

They're expecting near-summer weather this afternoon when the undefeated, untied Cowboys swap touchdowns with the four-time losers from the Rocky Mountains and a crowd of 10,000 is expected.

COLUMBUS —(AP)— The Ohio State-Butler basketball game at Indianapolis has been advanced from Saturday, Feb. 8, to Monday, Jan. 27.

Butler Keeps Loop Lead, Defeats Bellville, 31 to 25

BUTLER—Although held to its lowest point total of the season, Butler's rampaging veterans ran up victory No. 7 here last night before a capacity crowd.

Butler threw up a tight man-to-man defense to defeat Bellville, 31 to 25, in the most important Richland county game during the first round of competition. The victory gave Butler a two-game lead in the league race.

Bellville continues to hold second place in the standings with five wins and two defeats. Plymouth-Ontario, Lexington-Lucas and Shiloh-Union contests were postponed last night.

In fact Butler's defense was so potent that Bellville could not score from the court for the first 20 minutes of play. Don Worner broke the spell with a one-handed push shot midway in the third canto. The Bellville zone defense also functioned mighty smoothly.

Butler's lowest previous total of 38 points was recorded gainst Ontario a month ago. Coach Ed Wysocki's team has averaged 45.9 points in the seven triumphs.

Neither team could score a field goal in the opening quarter with Myron Collins and Doug Weber of Butler dumping in free throws and Worner and Wade duplicating for Bellville. Estley Maglott and Bob Bierly got a pair of fielders apiece to lead Butler to a 12 to 6 half-time lead.

D. Walker, Wade, Homer Walker and Worner all connected on foul shots for Bellville's second quarter points.

Butler led 18 to 13 at the three-quarter mark.

Maglott led the scorers with 10 points. Bierly and Collier of Butler fouled out in the fourth period while Sam Roberts played the entire last half with four personals charged against him. Butler made seven of 16 free throws and Bellville, 11 of 26.

Tod Brokaw, freshman, sunk a free throw in the last 30 seconds to give Butler a 19 to 18 victory over Bellville in the reserve game.

Buckeyes Open Title Defense

COLUMBUS —(UP)— Ohio State university's basketballers open defense of their Western conference cage title here tonight against the Minnesota Gophers with the Bucks' 22-game-at-home victory streak very much in danger.

The Bucks, who lost four in a row to their recent west coast tour, up into the contest decided underdogs, largely because of a scoring deficiency at the center position.

Ohio's two centers, Jack Underman and Jack Pfeiffer, have scored a total of 33 points in the bucks five games to date, while Minnesota's towering pivot man, six-foot nine-inch Jim McIntyre, has dumped in 105 eight games and figures to be the difference between the two teams.

The entire Minnesota team holds a scoring advantage over the bucks, too. The Gophers in eight games have averaged 55.8 while the Bucks in winning only one contest have hit for a 41.7 average.

The game, expected to attract a capacity crowd of 7,500 into the state fairgrounds coliseum, will be preceded by a preliminary which pits Ohio State's junior varsity against the Jay-Vees from Ohio university. The prelim starts at 7 p.m.

Burton Hits Pins To 626-622 Tune

F. Burton, anchor man on the Mansfield Rug quintet, featured competition in the Commercial B bowling league on the Colony lanes.

Burton blasted 191-205-226—622 for individual honors with W. Clecker, Oak Park Tavern, trailing with 214-162-240—616. C. Altman, Crescent Cafe, had 215-202-193—610 and H. Uplinger, Mansfield Rug, 224-172-208—604.

The Mansfield Rug five took team honors with 2,800.

Don Schuster, Max Diner, hit 166-258-547 in the Women's Commercial league.

Madison Rams Rack Up Fourth Straight Win

WILLARD—A great fourth period field goal splurge enabled Mansfield Madison to come from behind and defeat Willard here last night, 40 to 31.

In winning their fourth straight decision, the Rams poured 18 points through the hoop in the final frame to annex the wide margin of victory. Only loss sustained by Coach Jeff DeHaven's club this season was in the opener against Mt. Vernon.

The victory side of the Ram ledger includes Shelby, 31 to 23, Loudonville, 42 to 18, and Lexington, 39 to 37, in addition to Willard.

Willard clamped a tight defense around junior forward Eldon Pritchard but the Rams' leading scorer managed to send five field goals through the basket. Dick Ernsberger, Madison guard, contributed his best scoring outburst of the season, 12 points.

Willard had defeated the Rams twice in 1945-46 and last night's battle gave the Madison lads a measure of revenge.

The home club started with a bang and piled up a 10 to 4 advantage in the opening period. Madison got back into the game and closed the gap to 14 to 12 at the half-way point.

DeHaven's club again outscored Willard in the third period and trailed only 23 to 22 as the final heat opened.

Willard reserves defeated the Madison seconds in the prelim, 18 to 10, after leading by periods, 5 to 4, 9 to 6, and 13 to 8. Durig topped the Ram scorers with four.

Madison entertains Lucas next Tuesday on the Ram court.

Jerry Krall Returns To State for Classes.

COLUMBUS—(AP)—Jerry Krall, speedy Toledo halfback, has returned to Ohio State university for the winter term.

Krall had been out of school for more than a month during which school authorities investigated an English instructor's complaint that Krall threatened him during an examination.

The 96 points scored by the Colgate basketball team against Toronto recently, set an all-time Red Raider record.

Six Browns Make All-Conference Teams

NEW YORK—The first official all-conference teams of the All-America Football conference, containing six Cleveland Browns' stars, were announced today by the conference office.

The Browns placed four men on the first team and two on the second team selected by writers and radio announcers in each of the eight conference cities. Each paper and radio station was given only one ballot to assure sectional balance.

San Francisco New York, and Brooklyn each got two first team berths, and Los Angeles took the remaining position.

Eight first team and six second team posts went to players in their first season of pro football. The high quality of talent in the new All-America circuit becomes evident when it is considered that some 115 former National Football league players were on AAC rosters when training camps opened last summer. Only eight managed to land in the top 22.

All of the first team backs, and all of Cleveland's four first team selections are pro freshmen. The Browns placed Otto Graham at quarterback, Marion Motley at fullback, Dante Lavelli at end, and Bill Willis at guard. Motley and Willis were the only Negroes in the conference and both made the first team.

Glenn Dobbs, jr., of the Brooklyn Dodgers, rated by many experts the greatest player in football today, polled the highest total with 41 first place votes and one second team ballot for 41½ points. He was the only player whose name appeared on every ballot.

He was followed by his interborough rival, Orban (Spec) Sanders of New York, with 36½ points for the other halfback slot. The heavy vote recorded by this pair left only 12½ votes for Bob (Hunchy) Hoernschemeyer of Chicago and 11½ for Steve Juzwik of Buffalo, the second team halfbacks. Juzwik played with the Washington Redskins before the war.

Motley with 30½ points won a two-an race from Norm (Chief) Standlee of San Francisco, ex-Chicago Bears' fullback, with 21. Only three other men drew votes.

Graham, whose pay-off passing aided the Browns to victory in 12 of their 14 conference games and in their 14 to 9 play-off victory over New York, outscored clever Frankie Albert of the 49ers, 32½ to 20½. Graham compiled his greatest passing yardage in the Browns' two losses, to San Francisco and Los Angeles, incidentally.

Contests in the line were much closer, with 19 ends and guards, 18 tackles, and 11 centers drawing votes, but Lavelli of the Browns (31½) at end and Bruno Banducci of the 49ers (26) at guard were standouts.

Alyn Beals of the 49ers got 22 votes, leaving 18 for Jack Russell of New York and 16 for Mac Speedie of the Browns in the contest at the ends.

Willis polled 17½ points to nose out Bill Radovich of Los Angeles (16) and Buddy Jungmichel of Miami (11½) for the other guard berth. Radovich was an all-pro star with the Detroit Lions.

Frank (Bruiser) Kinard, former Brooklyn tackle now with the Yankees, was the lone former all-NFL star to make the AAC first team. Ten first team votes and a preponderance of second place votes gave him 23½ points. Martin Ruby, Dodger star, got 21½ for the other post, while Los Angeles' two tackles dominated the second team with 19 for Bob Reinhard, and 16½ for Lee Artoe, former Chicago Bears' all-NFL star.

Bob Nelson of Los Angeles, ex-Detroit Lions' ace, won the scrambled center race with 15 points to 14 for Moe Scarry of the Cleveland Browns, former Rams' star.

SNOWSHOES

Peter Rabbit's cousins are Hares, more often than not called Rabbits. It is fun about names. Boys and girls are given names and then called other names wholly different, nicknames. It is just the same way among the furred and feathered folks of the Green Forest and the Green Meadows. Johnny Chuck the Woodchuck is called Ground-hog when, as you know, he isn't a hog at all. Prickly Pete the Porcupine is called Hedgehog, but he is no more a Hog than is Johnny Chuck. Moreover, in Europe is a prickly little person to whom the name Hedgehog rightfully belongs, and he isn't even remote cousin of Prickly Porky. Jimmy Skunk is called Polecat, and that name belongs to someone else across the ocean. There are no Polecats in America. Thunder the Ruffed Grouse is called Partridge, but that is the real name of another bird.

It is the same way with the Hares. In the West some are called Jack Rabbits. In the North the Varying Hare, this one Peter calls Cousin Jumper, is most often called Snowshoe Rabbit instead of by his proper name of Varying Hare, given him because he wears a brown coat in summer, a white coat in winter, and a mixture of brown and white in spring and fall.

Do you think Old Mother Nature has been unfair in the matter of snowshoes," said Blacky the Crow to Peter Rabbit.

"Yes," replied Peter. "She has given them to Cousin Jumper, but she hasn't given me any."

"Why should she?" asked Blacky.

"Why shouldn't she?" retorted Peter.

"Because you don't need them and she knows it. She gives folks only what they need. You know that," said Blacky.

"If Cousin Jumper needs them why don't I? Tell me that," cried Peter.

"You're not big enough for them," chuckled Blacky.

"What do you mean, I'm not big enough?" demanded Peter indignantly.

"Just that, my dear Peter. Just that. You are so much smaller than Jumper that you can get about on soft snow that he would sink into if he had no snowshoes. What chance would he have with Reddy Fox unless he could run on snow that Reddy would have to wade through, or Yowler the Bobcat would have to plunge through. If any one in the Green Forest needs snowshoes it is your big cousin, Jumper the Hare," declared Blacky.

"We don't need snowshoes here in the dear Old Briar-patch. We wouldn't have any use for them," spoke up little Mrs. Peter, who had been listening.

"I don't know why we wouldn't," asserted Peter sharply.

"That is because you don't use your head," said Mrs. Peter testily. "We always keep our little paths here well trodden down. We would if we had snowshoes, so what good would they do us? Here we are safe from Reddy Fox, Yowler the Bobcat, Hawks and Owls. With Cousin Jumper it is different, just as Blacky says. Because he must at all times be able to run he needs snowshoes; we don't.

"Just the same I wish I had some. Sometimes the snow is too light for even me to get about on it," said Peter.

"You don't need to get about on it. Just stay at home where you belong, and help keep our paths trodden down," retorted Mrs. Peter. Blacky chuckled.

Now of course the kind of snowshoes they were talking about are quite different from the snowshoes boys and girls and grown-ups, too, sometimes wear. Of course the Green Forest folks don't wear real shoes. Jumper's so-called snowshoes really are extra big furry feet with widely spreading toes. Those toes on his big hind feet are so long and spread so far apart that they serve Jumper exactly as snowshoes serve us. This is why he is called the Snowshoe Rabbit. But when you hear him called that don't forget that he is a Hare, not a Rabbit.

KNUTSON SURE OF TAX SLASH

WASHINGTON—(INS)—The Republican tax reduction drive gathered steam today with a bill to grant a 20 per cent reduction to individual taxpayers formally before the house of representatives.

Rep. Knutson (R., Minn.), chairman of the house ways and means committee, authorized the reduction measure—the first bill to be introduced in the present session of the house.

He told a news conference he looked for final enactment of the measure before April 1, and said it would apply to all incomes earned during 1947.

Knutson declared that the business of organizing house committees would delay ways and means committee hearings on the bill. Another cause for delay is the necessity for senate and house committees to agree on a 1947 ceiling on government spending, an event which is planned for late next week or early the following week.

The Knutson measure contains two modifications from the flat 20 per cent "across-the-board" reduction promised by Republicans during the recent election campaigns.

It would grant an additional $500 personal exemption for taxpayers over 65 years of age, and would allow only a 10.5 per cent reduction on that portion of individual incomes in excess of approximately $300,000 annually.

Colin Stamm, congressional tax expert, estimated that the measure would cost the federal government between 3.3 and 3.4 billion dollars at current national income payment levels.

Knutson asserted however that "I take the position that there will be no loss." He said the reductions would place more spending power in the hands of purchasers, which would be reflected in a higher level of business and increased tax returns to government.

'Am' Linksmen Make Bold Bid

LOS ANGELES —(AP)— With amateur golfers making their boldest bid in 21 years, the Los Angeles Open moved into the second round today.

Former amateur king Bud Ward of Spokane, Wash., setting the pace for the simon-pures, tied for first round honors at 69—two under par—with Tony Penna, veteran Cincinnati pro.

Just a stroke behind the leaders was another ex-amateur titleholder, Frank Stranahan, Toledo, O., together with the favored Benny Hogan of Hershey, Pa., and Ed Oliver, Wilmington, Del.

Still another play-for-funner, Bruce McCormick of Los Angeles, posted a 71 to rank among the top 10 for the first 18 holes.

If the amateurs keep up through the final 54 holes, it will surpass any of their performances in 20 previous Los Angeles Opens. Only four players—the last was Johnny Dawson in 1940—have finished among the 10 leaders before, and never more than one in any year.

Professionals who matched par-71 figures for the 7,000-yard Riviera Country club layout were Chick Harbert, Detroit; Eddie Joseph, Oakland; Ted Rhodes, Nashville, and George Fazio, Los Angeles.

Try and Stop Me

—By Bennett Cerf

The chemist looked up from the analysis of the home-made hooch a cautious Scotchman had submitted, and said, "I'm sorry, but this stuff is awful. Two drinks, and I guarantee you would be blind for life. Better let me destroy it."

"No need to do that," said the Scotchman. "My old friend, McGregor, who's been blind all his life, lives just around the corner Might as well gi'e it to him for a birthday present"

* * *

A simple soul, who had read a lot of pigeon stories in previous compilations of jokes, wandered into Central Park one afternoon and managed to grab hold of one of the pigeons which was strutting on the Mall.

He spent ten fruitless minutes trying to get the pigeon to talk to him and then, with an ejaculation of disgust, let it escape.

"Just my luck," he muttered, "to get hold of one of the deaf and dumb ones."

ARMS MERGER CAUSES SPLIT

WASHINGTON—(INS)—The Republican majority on the senate armed services committee split wide open on the merger issue today even before the group was officially established.

Sen. Bridges (R, N. H.), foe of merging the army and navy, called for an early showdown of Republican sentiment in the senate.

Bridges prepared what he termed a "unification-but-not-merger" bill which he said he will lay before the GOP conference.

At the same time, Sen. Gurney (R., S D.), new chairman of the powerful combined military and naval affairs committee, prepared to resume his fight for the merger.

Squarely with Gurney on the merger issue is one other of the seven GOP members of the committee, Sen. Wilson (R, Iowa); another, Sen. Saltonstall (R., Mass.), leans toward a pro-merger position.

Solidly with Bridges—or perhaps still more flatly opposed to bringing the services together—is Sen. Edward V. Robertson (R., Wyo.), Sen. Morse (R., Ore). and the freshman member, Sen. Baldwin (R., Conn.), were non-committal.

Bridges announced that he will challenge his party on the issue if the conference withholds support. He said he will introduce his bill early in the session regardless of whether he wins conference endorsement.

Director Peter Godfrey says he overheard this: An ambitious film actress was grousing to a fading star about her contract.

"It irks me," she said, "to think I get only $50,000 a picture."

"Nice irk if you can get it," was the acid answer.

A Wag is Born: When Luther Adler left "A Flag Is Born" (to fill a contract in a Ben Hecht movie) he learned his replacement (Jacob Ben-Ami) couldn't do so for three days. That meant the cast would have to adjust itself to an understudy until Ben-Ami could make it.

So Luther wired Hecht (author of the pro-Palestine play) requesting permish to stay in the show another half week. Hecht replied: "Leave at once. The Jews have suffered so long. Let the cast suffer a little."

Love Letter Dept.: The following editorial in the Miami Daily News is the first one (we ever saw) in an opposition gazette that didn't call us a nawtee, nawtee boy. Hey, Mom! Looka!

"A national broadcast appeal by Walter Winchell last night for a blood donation to save a stricken Dearborn, Mich., man in a Miami hospital offers this community a lesson—and the nation fresh evidence for the superior Hooper rating of Winchell. . . . For him, the overwhelming response to his appeal must have proved both humane and professional satisfaction.

"He only was a donor at the hospital here within a few minutes to be followed by an estimated 500 more—but radio stations, hospitals and air lines from coast to coast were swamped with sympathetic applicants. Here's an orchid, Walter!"

Thank you very much. But if it wasn't for the alert and humane city desk at the Miami Herald we wouldn't have been able to share in one of the most exciting assignments in our 26 years on the papers.

Some of us were discussing Mrs. FDR's plan to press for admitting 200,000 displaced persons.

"Oh," argued a bigot, "there's not enough room in America."

"There'd be plenty of room," said a American, "if we sent all our pro-Nazis to Germany."

One of Damon's pals thought if he had retired he might have lived a few years more.

"When a newspaperman like Runyon retires," said a copy-desker, "he lives a few years less."

The Runyon wing (for Cancer Research) will also be for child victims because one of Damon's doctors just told me: "That was nearest his heart—children—and he once said he wished he could build a wing for them."

It will please you all to know the donations are avalanching in from everywhere.

Lippmann — Today and Tomorrow

SENATOR ELLENDER of Louisiana is quoted in the Washington Post as saying the Bilbo case is a "shameful attempt to interfere with the sovereign rights of the state of Mississippi." That is a serious accusation, and if the senator can sustain it, then not only should Bilbo be seated but the senate should offer its humble apologies for all the trouble to which two committees of the senate have subjected him.

But, as a matter of fact, Senator Ellender is himself the chairman of one of the two committees that have investigated Bilbo. Presumably then, it was not interference with the sovereign rights of the state of Mississippi to inquire into the charges that, in the primaries and in the election, Bilbo violated the federal Constitution, the federal criminal code, and the Hatch Act.

The committee which investigated these charges consisted of five senators. Three of them, Ellender himself, Thomas of Oklahoma and Maybank of South Carolina, decided after hearing the evidence that Bilbo "had been duly and legally elected to represent the state of Mississippi."

Two of them, Bridges of New Hampshire, and Hickenlooper of Iowa, decided after hearing the evidence that Bilbo's credentials are tainted "with fraud and corruption."

* * *

ALL THAT a majority of the senate has been trying to do is to deny Bilbo a seat until the whole senate can decide whether it agrees with Ellender, Thomas and Maybank or with Bridges and Hickenlooper.

Now it cannot be an interference with the sovereign rights of the state of Mississippi for the senate as a whole to judge for itself whether it agrees with its own committee.

If there was any interference with the sovereignty of Mississippi, it occurred when Ellender himself agreed to investigate the charges. But if Ellender could investigate Bilbo's election, then it cannot be "shameful" for the rest of the senate to investigate Bilbo's election.

The right of the senate to be the "judge" of Bilbo's "elections, returns and qualifications" comes directly from the Constitution (Article 1, Section 5, Paragraph 1). There is no doubt that this important article in the Constitution is an "interference" with the sovereign rights of the state of Mississippi and of every other state in the union. The senate is the final judge, and not the state which elected him, whether a man is properly elected and duly qualified to be a senator of the United States.

That whether Ellender approves it or not is one of the basic principles of the American government. A state does not have an absolute sovereign right to send any one it pleases to the senate. The sovereign rights of the state are limited in this respect by the Constitution of the United States.

* * *

BILBO, if he were seated, would not be the senator of Mississippi but a senator of the United States; he would not be an officer of the state but an officer of the Union.

There is no question, I think, that this is the fundamental principle of the case. It was established in the Philadelphia convention which framed the Constitution. On June 26, 1787, Oliver Ellsworth of Connecticut moved that the salaries of senators "be paid by their respective states" rather than "out of the national treasury." The whole question which Ellsworth has in mind was raised concretely by that motion: If a senator is the representative of a sovereign state, then his salary should be paid by his state; if he is an officer of the United States, then his salary should be paid from the national treasury.

It was James Madison of Virginia who led the opposition to Ellsworth's proposal.

"The motion," he said, "would make the senate like congress (he meant the congress of the articles of confederation) the mere agents and advocates of states' interests and views instead of being the impartial umpires and guardians of justice and general good."

Though the vote was close (six states to five), Madison prevailed, and ever since then it has been the established doctrine that the senate is not an assemblage of the agents of the states, but the organ of a national government.

Council to Get City Budget Bill Friday

'47 OPERATING COSTS DUE TO SHOW INCREASE

Rising Expenses Give Council Headache In Trying to Set Up Appropriation for Year.

Two major unpredictables—the prices of material and labor—are making the job of preparing Mansfield's 1947 appropriation bill more difficult than it has been in years, Mayor Roy W. Vaughn said today.

He added that the first draft of the bill should be ready Tuesday for consideration by city council's finance committee. It goes to council Friday.

Because the draft is still being prepared, however, Vaughn said he can't tell how this year's bill will compare with the 1946 figure.

Last year, the appropriation measure—totaling $828,032—topped 1945's by nearly $70,000 and surpassed 1944's by $108,000.

* * *

May Set Record.

An indication that this year's bill may go well above 1946's is seen in the fact that council has already approved a general fund budget totaling $520,754. This compares with a general fund appropriation for 1946 of $373,646.

If council reduces this figure only by the same amount as it did the 1945 general fund budget the city's 1947 general fund appropriation will total more than $450,000. This would represent an increase of nearly $100,000 in the general fund appropriation alone.

Usually, council slices a large sum from the budget before the appropriation bill is adopted. Last year, for instance, the general fund budget totaled $440,894 but council pared this some $67,000 in the appropriation bill.

Mayor Vaughn, Service-Safety Director William W. Enlow, and two clerks were still busy today compiling requests received from the various city departments.

* * *

Lake Cost Jumps.

In citing uncertainties of labor and material prices during the coming year as a budget hazard, Vaughn pointed to one major price increase which the city had to face unexpectedly this year.

The city's Clear Fork dam originally was expected to cost around $300,000, but the final contract price totaled nearly $425,000.

Tuesday night, Vaughn said, he and Enlow would meet with the finance committee to map the draft to be considered by council next Friday.

Council's finance committee is headed by Russell Porch and includes Fred Miller and Charles N. Shultz.

ILLNESS FATAL TO MRS. GRABLER

Mrs. Edith Moore Grabler, 41, wife of Lawrence F. Grabler and former Woodland school teacher, died last night at her home, 521 West Fourth street, after a long illness.

Born in Mansfield, Nov. 5, 1905, Mrs. Grabler was the daughter of the late Charles S. and Ida Mills Moore. She was graduated from Mansfield Senior high school and attended Wittenberg college. 82-Acre Site Acquired for New Airport for Crestline, Galion

Purchase of the last parcel of land, consisting of 32 acres in Crawford county, by the Galion-Crestline Airport, Inc., today opened the way for start of construction of a new Galion-Crestline port within the next eight weeks.

The parcel adjoins 50 acres in Richland county purchased recently for a reported price of $7,500. The entire site was purchased from Anthony DiSanze, owner of the Fairway restaurant, and is located to the north, west and east of the restaurant, 11 miles west of Mansfield on U. S. Route 30-S.

Atty. Albert Cox of Galion, president and legal adviser of the airport company, said the port will serve both Crestline and Galion. He listed the purchase price of the land as "in the neighborhood of $10,000." Cox said the corporation had 75 or 80 stockholders in the two cities.

"We expect to start work on the airport within the next couple months," Cox said. "The first work will be to develop the runways which we contemplate will run northeast and southwest and northwest and southeast."

He added that the corporation hopes to have the airport in operation by next summer, but that hangars and other buildings may not be completed for a "year or two."

"By locating the airport on the Richland-Crawford county line, we hope to service the factories in both Galion and Crestline and also afford flying facilities for both communities," Cox said. "We expect eventually to establish a school to train pilots at the port."

Up and Down The Street

THAWED OUT—

Firemen answered an alarm at Fifth and Adams streets early yesterday but didn't put out the fire. It was allowed to burn because, believe it or not, it was being used to heat coal! Firemen explained it this way: The coal, in a railroad car, was frozen. In order to "de-frost" it, a fire had to be lighted under the car. A passer-by, not realizing that coal, at times, has to be warmed up, sounded the alarm.

Officers Seek Missing Girl, 17

State highway patrolmen and sheriff's officers today were on the lookout for a green one-half ton truck in which Thelma Jones, 17, who lives east of Mansfield, was reported to have disappeared with a male companion yesterday.

Sheriff's deputies said the girl was reported missing by her brother, Virgil, who told officers that he saw her get in the truck about 11 a. m. but was unable to identify the driver.

MT. GILEAD—Funeral services for Ward Sylvester Blayney, 48, who died unexpectedly of a heart attack at his home here early Friday morning, will be held tomorrow at 2:30 p. m. at the Craven funeral home with burial in Rivercliff cemetery. Rev. R. C. McMillen will officiate.

Rustlers, Two Cows Hunted By Deputies

Cattle rustlers who yesterday led off two cows from the Jud Day barn on the Mansfield-Lucas road were still at large today while Richland Sheriff's deputies continued their search for the cows and rustlers.

Day reported that the cows were taken from his barn between midnight and 6 a. m. yesterday.

The missing animals were described as a six-year-old Jersey and a 20-months-old Holstein.

On the trail of the Richland county rustlers yesterday afternoon soon after the theft was reported were Deputy Sheriffs Ralph Hildebrand and Charles Wheeler.

Cow tracks were reported plainly visible from the barn down the road for a short distance where they ended abruptly.

The deputies expressed the belief that the missing animals may have been loaded onto a truck at that point.

AIR SERVICE HEARINGS SET

Mayor Roy W. Vaughn said he was notified today that oral arguments in the Civil Aeronautics board's Great Lakes case, which includes hearings of applications of airlines to serve Mansfield, will open in Washington Jan. 20.

The mayor said City Solicitor Leslie K. Wagner, who is to represent the city at the hearings, received notice of the opening date from the CAB.

Vaughn said main points to be stressed by the city will be the need here for north-south, east-west trunk line service.

The day the city's case will be heard has not been announced by the CAB, Vaughn said. He said that other persons, in addition to Wagner, may attend the hearings in behalf of the city.

BILBO BATTLE SNARLS SENATE

the house and adjourned it till Monday.

President Truman may deliver his State of the Union message then if the senate deadlock over Bilbo is broken or an agreement can be reached to take time out and march to the house for a joint session.

Barkley Offers Aid.

Democratic Leader Barkley (Ky.) offered to help out with a resolution which would give Bilbo his seat temporarily, fix the start of senate debate on his case for Jan. 14 and require only a majority vote to determine whether he should remain.

Taft, chairman of the GOP steering committee, declined. He said he believed that once Bilbo got in, he couldn't legally be removed without a two-thirds vote.

The GOP hope for debate limitation rested mainly on Democrats who voted with Republicans yesterday to postpone indefinitely action on a resolution by Senator Overton (D., La.) to seat Bilbo at once and try him later.

The tieup kept Leslie L. Biffle, the retiring Democratic senate secretary, in the presiding officer's chair and Democrats temporarily in the majority.

Enlisted Men Drop h Grade To Squirm Through Loophole

WASHINGTON—(ANS)—Army sources said today that war department action to discharge some GI's whose dependents were prohibited from joining them overseas has been abused by an undisclosed number of top grade enlisted men.

Officials said that in some cases men in the top three enlisted grades have asked to be reduced in rank so that they may obtain discharges from the army on grounds their dependents have been denied the right to join them.

Bars Dependents.

The army recently barred dependents of enlisted men in the four lowest grades from being reunited with their soldiers because of a housing shortage.

To relieve disappointment of personnel affected the army offered them discharge or transfers to the United States.

Officials said it was disappointing that some in the ranks of staff, technical, master or first sergeant would take advantage of a loophole by exercising the right to ask for reduction to one of the grades affected.

They disclosed that this message has been sent to field commanders overseas from army headquarters:

"It has come to the attention of the war department that the privileges (of discharge) are being abused by enlisted personnel of the first three grades requesting reduction to regain eligibility for discharge.

Halts Abuses.

"To prevent further abuses commanders will use appropriate discretion in application for reduction without prejudice when the sole purpose appears to be for discharge."

This mixed message said that "if warranted action on such requests may be deferred until after Jan. 1947 in the zone of interior and Feb. 1, 1947 in overseas status."

After those dates men lose eligibility for applying for discharge because their dependents cannot join them.

Fackler Challenges Support Of Triple A Program In Area

Henry Fackler, of Plymouth, state chairman of the Ohio Marketing Quota association, today challenged the amount of local support behind the Agricultural Adjustment Administration program. He declared:

"Elections were to be held recently in each township on specified days at which time all participating farmers were requested to vote. Investigation has shown that in some instances as few as one person and in others only nine farmers attended the election to select committeemen for their respective townships. Inquiries also disclosed that many persons were selected without their knowledge or consent. They were later informed by other 'supposedly' elected committeemen, and in one instance at least the person so selected claims not to have participated in the program nor does he intend to do so."

"From the statements published," he said, "$90,925 has been allotted to Richland county out of the $7,391,000 allocated to Ohio and $300,000,000 to the nation. That would provide approximately $41.35 to each of the approximate 2,200 farmers in Richland county, if all were treated on an equal basis. But if 80 per cent participate as Triple A officials estimate, it would amount to approximately $53.30 each with which to rebuild soil, plant trees, fertilize, lime, build ponds.

Now what kind of a conservation program can be accomplished with that amount allotted each farmer?" Fackler challenged.
